Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 21-60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by McDowell (US Pat No. 5,073,054), cited by Applicant.

Regarding claim 21, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches a radiophone comprising:

a display for displaying data (42, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32);

soft key means arranged adjacently below the display (43-48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32); and scroll key means for scrolling data on the display (48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32);

Art Unit: 2642

wherein the scroll key means has first and second portions which are diagonally offset from one another and positioned adjacently below the display and positioned laterally adjacent to the soft key means (48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32); and wherein the radiophone is arranged such that depression of the first portion of the scroll key means actuates a first scrolling action (48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32); and depression of a second portion of the scroll key means actuates a second scrolling action (48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32).

Regarding claim 22, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed in claim 21, wherein the first scrolling action scrolls data an upward direction and the second scrolling action scrolls data in a downward direction (48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32).

Regarding claim 23, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed in claim 21, wherein the first portion is to the right of the second portion and closer to the top of the radiophone such that a user holding the radiophone in a right hand can depress the first and second portions with a thumb of the right hand by merely pivotally moving the thumb in an arc about a socket of the thumb and without unnatural extension of the thumb (48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32).

Regarding claim 24, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed claim 21, wherein the first scrolling action is shifting the data by one position on the display in the first direction (48, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32).

Regarding claim 25, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed 1, wherein the data comprises text (42, fig 4; and col. 4, Ins 23-32).

Regarding claim 26, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed in claim 21, wherein the radiophone comprises a user interface and a controller unit connected to the user interface, the user interface comprising the display and a keypad having the soft key whose function is controlled by the controller unit and is displayed in a predetermined part of the display (48, fig 4; and col. 4, Ins 23-32).

Regarding claim 27, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed in claim 21, wherein the radiophone is capable of assuming a plurality of states in which a group predetermined actions associated with the state concerned may be performed by means of the soft key, with a controller unit displaying an action from the group of actions as a default function (43-48, fig 4; and col. 4, Ins 23-32).

Regarding claim 28, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone according to claim 21, wherein the scroll key means allows a user to selectively jump down between preceding or succeeding items at a location in a menu loop (48, fig 4; and col. 4, Ins 23-32).

Regarding claim 29, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone according to claim 21, wherein the scroll key means allows user to switch from a default function to a group of functions to which the default function belongs (48, fig 4; and col. 4, Ins 23-32).

Regarding claim 30, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed in claim data is a menu option (42-43, fig 4; and col. 4, Ins 23-32).

Regarding claim 31, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiophone as claimed in claim 21, arranged to provide a phone book function, wherein the first scrolling action replaces a first phone number on the display with a second phone number (43b, fig 4; and col. 4, lns 23-32).

Regarding claim 32, referring to figure 4, McDowell teaches the radiotelephone as claimed in claim 21, wherein the first scrolling action is scrolling data in a first direction and wherein the second scrolling action is scrolling data in second direction, and wherein the second direction is opposite to the first direction.

As to claims 33-60, they are rejected for the same reasons set forth to rejecting claims 21-32.
